Hi Mark,

Heads up: we have oral arguments for the ocean acidification case tomorrow. See below. I'll be in 20 Chinook most of the day after 10am with Lori Cora and our DOJ attorney if you want to talk about it.
Thx.

Antonio

You may want to flag this for Travis (OW press/communications contacts). This Thursday at noon Eastern Time, Dept of Justice will be in District Court presenting EPA's oral arguments in the litigation brought by Center for Biologic Diversity (Plaintiff). DOJ will be explaining to the Judge why the court should rule in EPA's favor regarding EPA's decision to not add waters as impaired by ocean acidification to Washington and Oregon's 303(d) lists. CBD is an organization that seeks out a lot of press. They have a daily press release on their website. It's possible they may have a press release regarding the fact that there is oral arguments.

Note that we do not expect the judge to rule at the oral arguments. That could take some time. But when he does rule, I'd expect CBD to have a press release ready to go, opining on the judge's ruling.
